

At Grecotel Creta Palace First Aid and Fire Safety seminars Seminars that save lives!

First Aid and Fire Safety seminars were held at Creta Palace on April 11 and 12 with great success. On April 11, 21 people from all parts of the hotel participated in the full-day training provided by Heraklion National Emergency Aid Centre (EKAB) and were certified in first aid. The training covered events such as fainting, injuries, choking. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation was performed with the help of training dummies using an external automatic defibrillator. The training ended with the representation of events and the immediate intervention of each employee.

On April 12, all hotel staff welcomed the Rethymnon Fire Brigade and were briefed on crisis situations, the legal framework in a fire event and the extinguishing media. The Rethymnon Fire Brigade presented the first actions that should be followed by each department in case of fire. Following the theoretical part of the training practice took place, whereas the employees were given the chance to use a fire extinguisher in a limited and controlled fire. At the end of the training the staff thanked Heraklion National Emergency Aid Centre (EKAB) and the Rethymnon Fire Brigade for the organized and impeccable training!

